GOVERNOR SENDS ANNUAL MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

Tishomingo, Sept. 6.—Gov. D. H. Johnston has transmitted his usual message to the Chickasaw legislature now in session here. Briefly the document explains the absurdity of another tribal election; asks that memorials providing for the sale of the segregated coal lands be passed; that the removal of restrictions be demanded; reports progress of signing and delivery of patents; reports splendid condition of Chickasaw affairs. The document concludes with these words:

"This is the seventh annual message which I have transmitted to the legislature as governor of the Chickasaw nation, and I deem it not at all improper to call attention to the fact that the period of time covered by my several administrations, as regards the bearing upon the welfare of our nation and people, has never been, and will never be, equaled by another like period of time in their history. A brief retrospect, from the beginning of my first administration, in 1898, to the present, is of continuous and absorbing interest, notwithstanding the conflicting sentiments of regret for the past felt by some, and of hope and confidence for the future felt by others. Whatever may be our regrets for the past and hopeful anticipations for the future, the Chickasaws are in the midst of a condition which is a reality, and that condition is that the customs and traditions of our fathers are no longer our rule and guide, in so far as the protection of our rights and property is concerned; but we must now contend, side by side, as citizens of the United States and of the new state of Oklahoma with more than a million other like citizens."

The policy of the government of the United States, inaugurated in 1898, by the ratification of the Atoka agreement by congress, some three months before my inauguration as governor, marks the beginning; and this policy has been pursued step by step and year by year to its practical consummation at this time.

"Fortunately our people have fully realized, for the past eight years, that gradual changing of conditions and the inevitable tendency toward those of the present; and I am happy to say as

Nero Perry, an old Chickasaw Freedman who lives on Caddo Creek, in the Chickasaw Nation, supports himself by hunting game with a bow and arrow. Though 76 years old he can send an arrow into a squirrel in the tallest tree. Perry went to the Chickasaw country in 1888 from Mississippi with "Jim" McLish, his old master. They settled on the banks of the Caddo creek, where they built the first house ever erected in the Chickasaw nation. Here they lived until 1861, when McLish died, then the old place reverted to Perry, and there he still lives. The same old house is still standing, almost as it was the day McLish died. Perry still relates stories of bygone days, when he in company with others of his nation and white trappers, for days and days spent the time in the woods hunting game. All his life he has led a free existence and tells of killing deer, bear and other wild animals with the bow and arrow.—K. C. Journal.

ADA MERCHANTS GIVEN A SCARE FOR THEIR MONEY

New railroads are not unmixed blessings. The construction work brings considerable trade to nearby points; but this trade is fraught with the danger of bad debts.

For example the $20,000 worth of mules and other equipment belonging to Contractor Tim Hurley, erstwhile grading on the Oklahoma Central near Ada, is now languishing in the hands of a receiver at the instance of several Ada creditors whose claims aggregate $7,000.

The principal creditor is C. M. Chauncey, grain dealer, $4,000; the other larger ones are Reed & Harrison, $1,600; Joe Deckert, $600; and Albert Nettles, $300. Davis Bros. and The Canadian Valley Construction company are also made garnishees and parties defendant in the suits.

Hurley broke camp and rolled westward on August 31. Geo. Harrison, A. R. Sugg and G. P. Carney, who had been appointed receiver of the property pending the litigation, followed and overtook the caravan this week near Byars. Mr. Carney took possession and placed the property in a pasture near by. Thus they will remain until October term of U. S. court unless a settlement is sooner arranged.

All the property mentioned is said to be mortgaged for $29,000 to one Hale in Oklahoma City, but the Ada creditors allege the incumbrance to be fraudulent.

MAY BEGIN BUILDING THE CEMENT PLANT IN 2 WEEKS

A. J. Mossman, who has in charge the surveying and investigation of the comparative merits of different tracts of land as a site for the cement plant, was approached Friday by the News Reporter about the progress of the work.

"City Surveyor Truitt and myself," said Mr. Mossman, "will complete a survey of the tract in Dagg's addition within five days. After that we have instructions to move back to Sunrise addition and survey that. Within ten days both surveys will be finished, and by that time A. L. Beck, president of the cement company, is expected here to make a choice of sites. It is probable that in about two weeks work will begin in earnest with a large force of men."

Asked as to what location would likely be selected, Mr. Mossman declined to venture an opinion. "The company," he said, "holds options on 70 acres in Sunrise and on 32 in Dagg's addition. Each location possesses some advantages the other does not. For one thing," he continued, "if the Dagg's tract should be chosen there would be a saving to the city of $1000 on length of pipe line and a saving to citizens of $1500 on the price of the 20 acres to be donated to the company."

Mr. Mossman has just received a letter from President Beck, urging that the work be rushed. The enterprise is in readiness at the Indiana end.

MUST HAVE $15 A TON FOR ALL COTTON SEED

Texarkana, Tex., Sept. 7.—The second day's session of the National Farmer's Educational and Co-operative Union was devoted almost entirely to routine business, including the reports of officers and committees and the discussion of the same.

What is regarded as one of the most important reports was that submitted by the committee on education. This report recommends that there be an increase in industrial and agricultural instruction in the public schools, and also suggests a course of reading on economic and governmental affairs for all the members of the organization. The report elicited much applause during its reading and was unanimously adopted.

As citizens of the new state of Oklahoma, being permitted as they are to assist in its organization and in the construction of its constitution and laws, they fully realize the duty incumbent upon them to see that such constitution and laws are so drafted as to afford full protection to their rights and property; and to this duty they are now addressing themselves with industry and good will, instead of indulging in useless and profitless sentiments of regret for the passing of conditions of the past."

We, your committeemen on cotton and cotton seed products, beg leave to man.

NEW DISTRICT COMMITTEE TO MEET SEPTEMBER 15

Democracy of the Eighty-seventh constitutional district is getting active. Friday the following call was issued, addressed to each township committeeman in the district:

Dear Sir—In order to complete the organization of the Democratic party in each constitutional delegate district, we are authorized by the State Campaign committee to call a meeting of the township committeemen who were elected or appointed under and by virtue of a recent order sent out from the State Campaign headquarters at Oklahoma City.

As you have been chosen committeeman for your township, we hereby notify you that we have called a meeting of said township committeemen within this, the Eighty-seventh constitutional district, to be held in the City of Ada, I. T., in the Reed-Douglas building, at 2 p. m., on Saturday, the 15th day of September, 1906.

We wish to impress upon you the importance of this meeting and the necessity of a full attendance on the part of the committeemen, and earnestly request that you be present.

Propositions pertaining to a more complete and thorough organization of the party within this district, the ordering of a primary election to be held for the purpose of nominating a candidate for delegate to the constitutional convention, and the fixing of a date and providing for the holding of said election will then be discussed.

We also request that you secure a list of four other good, active Democrats in your township and have their names with you at the above called meeting, as this will be necessary to perfect the organization as outlined to us from headquarters. Trusting you will be present on the date above named, we are, very respectfully,

J. T. CONN,
Chairman Democratic Executive Committee Sixteenth Recording District.

A. F. PYEATT,
Chairman Democratic Executive Committee Seventeenth Recording District.

S. C. TREADWELL,
Chairman Democratic Executive Committee Twenty-second Recording District.

It will be noted that the call is signed by J. T. Conn, the local executive committee chairman, but also by the chair-submit the following report: that whereas, at present market prices the approximate selling price of cotton seed products from one ton of cotton seed aggregates about $26.30, as follows: meal 300 pounds at $27 per ton, $10.80; oil, forty gallons at 27 1-2 cents per gallon, $11; linters, fifty pounds, at 4 1-2 cents per pound, $2.25; hulls, 750 pounds, at $6 per ton, $2.25. Total $26.30. And knowing that the total cost of producing said products from the raw seed will not exceed $5 per ton, we feel that present prices paid the producer for seed are far below what they should be in view of the value of this product.

Therefore we recommend to the members of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union that no seed be sold for less than the following rates: in the territory east of the Mississippi River a minimum price of 30c per bushel, or $18.60 per ton, as seed is worth that amount to the grower for fertilizer. In the territory west of the Mississippi River a minimum price of $15 per ton, as it is worth that price for fertilizer or feed purposes.

We earnestly urge all farmers of the South to join us in our effort to secure a fair minimum price for one of our principal products. As a matter of public policy we make the further recommendation that the attention of those public officers whose duty it is to see that the anti-trust laws are enforced be called to violations thereof, and that they be urged on securing convictions not to release offenders by mere payment of fines, but that the provisions of those laws providing for imprisonment penalty be rigidly enforced.

The committee on cotton seed and cotton seed products made its report at last night's session. The committee consists of E. S. Peters of Texas, chairman; Upton of Tennessee, Mahaffy of South Carolina, Murry of Arkansas and Ambrose of Louisiana.

The committee report was adopted as follows:

OVERDRAFTS

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small, are not approved by the comptroller of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusinesslike habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving products, such as cotton, grain and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn is the man who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

AMERICAN ARTISTS ABROAD

Their Merit Recognized and Reward ed Higher Than It Is at Home.

Once more an American artist's picture holds the place of honor at the exhibition of the Royal Academy in London. Sargent had attained that honor; now it is Abbey's turn, with a picture distinctly American in subject, representing Columbus landing in the new world. Several other well-known American artists figure among the notable exhibitors. In the two annual picture shows now open in Paris, the same fact is true, reports the New York World.

American artists frequently complain, as do singers and musicians, that the surest way to distinction at home is recognition abroad. The protest implies that merit is not so readily accepted here as merit as it is in France and England.

The distinction attained by Sargent in London has done more than all his early successors in this country to assure his preeminence. The same may be said to be true of Abbey, although fame came to him easy as an illustrator. Something may be due to the circumstance that for years both have done most of their work abroad. Beyond a doubt, however, art is viewed far more hospitably in Paris and London than in New York. We have yet no art exhibitions that occupy so large a place in popular life as the regular shows of the two foreign capitals.

It is noteworthy also that more contemporary American artists have room in the Luxembourg museum, where living painters must await admission to the Louvre, than in our own Metropolitan. The Paris list counts about 25, among them Whistler, Sargent, Winslow Homer, La Farge, Alexander Harrison, Henry Mosler, Walter MacEwan, Gari Melchers, Miss Cassatt, Edwin L. Weeks and H. O. Tanner.

Under the old management American artists were treated with suspicion at the Metropolitan. It was sometimes difficult to get their works through the museum's doors even as gifts.

Fortunately, all that is being rapidly changed. Sir Purdon Clarke advocates the necessity of building up a representative American collection. Mr. George A. Heard has donated a large fund, of which the income is reserved for the purchase of American works. It is a curious commentary on America that it was not until a foreign director was put in charge of the Metropolitan that American artists were promised something of the same public recognition they receive from the French government.

TURKEY WITH WOODEN LEG

Tale of a Gobbler That Smacks Somewhat of the Munchausen Flavor.

In most communities there are certain persons who possess peculiar characteristics, habits and beliefs, and this is true of the long shore sportsman of the old Mother State as of persons dwelling elsewhere, says Forrest and Stream.

Many of the old time sportsmen still carry and use their muzzle loading guns, which cannot be displaced by more modern arms. They usually manage to bag a good many birds and other game, and this is chiefly due, it is believed, to their knowledge of the habits of the game. They seldom go out without finding something.

A story is told of one gunner who if any of the shot should fall from his hands while loading his gun will at once return home and make no further effort to hunt that day, believing as he says, that those lost were his luck shot, and it would be useless for him to continue the hunt.

Another, whom I will call here Capt. Pete, is a sailor and all round sportsman. He loves to tell of his adventures with his dogs and gun, and is seldom seen without them. He tells many stories about the accuracy of Sweet Lips, his gun, and declares he can beat any man "a-shootin' for a turkey in the United States of Virginia."

On the occasion of a turkey hunt near the Rappahannock river Capt. Pete claims to have shot a 40-pound wild turkey, for which he was offered $4 cash. The gray whiskers on the turkey's breast were 18 inches long, and he had one wooden leg. Here Capt. Pete gives a laugh that could be heard a half mile away. "Sar, he was the biggest turkey I ever saw. There were 18 fellows in the bunch of us, and four others besides, and all ate a sumptuous meal from one-half of his breast."

Uncle Pete says he cannot account for that one wooden leg unless that turkey had been previously owned by some one as a pet wild turkey.

Natural Arm Chair.

A gardener in Korea has formed a natural arm-chair by twisting a growing vine to the required shape. It is also studded with seeds of the ginkgo tree, which have grown into the fibers of the vine. After the chair was fashioned in this way it was cut from the ground, dried and polished until it resembled mahogany. It is 3 feet 4 inches high, 25 inches wide and weighs over 200 pounds.

ODD POINT IN AUTO CASE.

Relatives of Victim Held Motorist Who Raised Dust Partly to Blame for Accident.

Paris.—A curious point in an action against a motor car driver came before the judges of the French chamber. It was a question as to whether a chauffeur who had raised dust could be proceeded against for homicide for carelessness.

On May 1 last an automobile passed a cyclist on the road between Melun and Paris. The car raised a cloud of dust, with the result that the cyclist could not see his way. His machine swerved, and he was overtaken by another motor car, which knocked him down and killed him.

Could the driver of the first car, which had raised a cloud of dust, be held responsible for the accident caused by the second car? The case came before the Corbeil court, which imposed a fine of $200 on the driver of the second car, besides compelling him to pay $600 compensation. But the driver of the car which caused the dust to fly was acquitted, and his claim for $40 for being unjustifiably prosecuted was allowed against the family of the cyclist who was killed. This decision was appealed against.

BODY GIVEN TO COLLEGE.

Aged Convict's Request Carried Out by Prison Authorities at Michigan City, Ind.

Michigan City, Ind.—The body of the dead life convict, James Blackwood, who was the oldest inmate of the state prison, was taken to the Valparaiso college for dissection by the medical department.

Blackwood died in the prison hospital after serving 18 years behind the prison bars. He had been here since the transfer from Jeffersonville in 1897.

As Blackwood was dying there stood beside his cot James L. Myers, the murderer who was given a pardon by Gov. Hanly. Myers was found praying for the dying convict when the glad tidings of the pardon came to his ears.

Blackwood served 18 years for a murder in Clay county in 1887. All that remains of his family is a son residing in Texas. The son was notified after death, but made no reply.

The crime for which James Blackwood was sentenced occurred while a party was returning from a dance in Benwood, Clay county, to Cardonia. Blackwood quarreled with his wife. In the fight which followed the woman was knocked down and sustained four broken ribs. She was wrapped in a bundle of straw and left by the roadside, where she was found in the morning. She died soon after. Blackwood pleaded guilty and was sentenced by the late Judge Coffey of Brazil.

Tapioca Jelly for Invalids.

One cup of tapioca, three cups of cold water, juice of a lemon and a pinch of grated peel. Sweeten to taste. Soak the tapioca in the boiling water four hours. Set within a saucepan of boiling water; pour more lukewarm water over the tapioca if it has absorbed too much of the liquid, and heat, stirring frequently. If too thick after it begins to clear, put in a very little boiling water. When quite clear put in sugar and lemon. Pour into molds. Eat cold, with cream flavored with rosewater and sweetened.

Compensation.

"I am sorry," said the doctor, "but your little girl will not be able to speak for several days." "Then it will be safe," said the anxious mother, "for me to invite the minister to tea, won't it?"—Sketch.

PRECOCIOUS SENILITY.

Valuable Lives Snuffed Out in Youth
and Middle Age by Disease of Age.

Precocious senility, when marked and rapid, is so rare as to be mere academic interest, a pathologic curiosity, such as the recorded instance of children of six years dying with arteriosclerosis and other signs of extreme age, says American Medicine. Even the very uncommon, but a much larger number of milder cases have so long been noted as to have given rise to the axiom that a man is as old as his arteries. These cases deserve more thought than is given to them, not so much to discover cures as to prevent decay, and save to society so many valuable lives which are now snuffed out in the middle age by diseases of the senile. There has been much wild speculation on the subject, chiefly in lay journals, and due, no doubt, to some more or less sensational investigations of Metchnikoff on the causes of normal senility and the possibility of prolonging human life beyond the century mark. Yet it is a serious problem and we should know what is the stimulus which makes one organism go through all its life changes in 50 years, while another under apparently identical conditions lasts 30 years longer.

COLD IS A MINOR FACTOR

In Pneumonia the Huddling Together
of People Is More Important

Augustus Wadsworth declares that experience has shown cold to be a minor predisposing factor in the development of pneumonia. The huddling together of people in close quarters is of far more importance, says Medical Record.

The treatment of pneumonia in its present stage may be said to be either very easy or impossible. A careful prophylaxis against disturbances of the digestive tract is of the greatest importance. Many ways of attaining the same results present themselves and the choice in great measure rests with personal experience. The hope of definite results lies in the production of an efficient and specific antiseptic serum.

It is known that poisonous substances are elaborated by the pneumococcus, but so far the production of an antitoxin corresponding to that used in diphtheria has not been obtained. Pneumonia, however, is the bacterium disease and as yet in none of this type have satisfactory results been secured in relation to antisera.

Miss Harper had ideas of her own on the question of the word "obey" in the ritual of the church, and decided that for her it should be eliminated.

She found a friend in Rev. Maxwell Gladdis, assistant pastor of Morris Chapel, Cincinnati, who promised to omit the word during the ceremony, and she was married, but friends were inconsiderate enough to say the marriage was invalid and at the next meeting of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, held in Cincinnati, the clergyman who had omitted the word was "churched."

Finally the question became general and later, when decisive action was taken, the sentence "serve and obey" was ordered stricken out of the matrimonial ritual of the discipline of the Methodist church.

To Save Table Cloths.

A friend with a large family used to be much disturbed over the frequency with which she had to renew her table linen, and especially the tablecloths. At last she hit this plan:

When she buys her linen, she sees to it that it is wider than necessary, and also a few inches longer. Then when the edges show the slightest indication of wear, she immediately takes off a strip from one side, four or six inches wide, and a strip from the end. This of course throws the wear upon a different place, and her cloth lasts just as long again. Isn't it well worth trying?

MIGRATION OF WILD GEESE

How the Old Leader of a Flock
Gathers It and Starts on Its Journey.

At the end of March or during the first week in April all the gray geese in the Outer Hebrides collect in one place before taking their departure for their nesting haunts within the Arctic circle.

To estimate their numbers is impossible, and to behold this vast concourse of geese as one of the sights of a lifetime. The vast host of birds stands packed together in a huge phalanx till the king of the graylegs starts the flight. As the old leader ascends a hundred thousand voices salute him, but none stirs till from overhead he gives the call for his subjects to follow him.

Some fifty birds rise in the air and follow him, and as they go gradually assume the wedge-like formation, with three single birds in a string at the apex of the triangle, and in a few minutes are out of sight. When they have been fairly started the king returns,
and after a few minutes rest he rises
into the air again, and the same process is gone through before he leads off another batch.

Again and again he returns until all are gone but 360 old veterans, which rise to meet him in the air as he flies back to them. Then, with their sovereign at their head, these also wing their way toward the pole not to return
until the following October.

A Ballade.

"Tom" was an old maiden's cat—
Gentleman Thomas was he,
Never went out on a "bat"
Under the crab-apple tree!
Heart whole a cat as could be!
Then came a fair maltese queen
Sweet as a kitten was she—
Neat thing Thomas had seen!

You lost his heart in a trice;
Flew of his love by the moon!
Foraged and brought her some nice,
Sang her a pretty love tune
All in his very best tune!
Raged her to his nest in his shed!

Wouldn't she come to him soon,
Come to him soon and be wed?

Ah! what a wedding it was
Under the crab-apple tree!
Cats came for miles, all a-buzz,
Anxious the nuptials to see,
Please with this mat-ri-mo-ny
But the crowd was a sight
Under the crab-apple tree—
Yeow! what a noise in the night!

Then came a man with a gun—
"Boom!" went the gun—just like that!
Now my sad story is done—

"Tom" is a widower cat;
Now he wears crepe on his hat!
Nightly he mourns for his girl
Under the tree—and stands pat!

Dodging the missiles they hurl!

L'ENVOY.
Bad is this cat tale of death!
Maybe the moral is plain—
You hunt it out if you've breath,

the Congressional Record. In other words, just half as many as in the curtain lecture your wife gave you the last time you stayed out all night with the boys.

The traveling evangelist comes to town and holds overflow meetings until the cows come home, and four-fifths of his audience is composed of women and children. Many go forward and are saved while the men are playing pinochle or seven-up downtown. Now, what bothers me is this: If only the women are saved who, in Heaven, will "lovey" call "dovey," who will bring home the pay envelope Saturday night, who will split the wood and growl at the heavy dumping in the chicken pot-pie? In other words, who will make home happy in Heaven?

Uncle By's Start.

Once upon a time I was a yearning youth who wanted to get out of the village environs and try my sails on the great sea of journalism. After a severe bombardment by mail, Fred Faulkes, then of the Cedar Rapids (Ia.) Gazette, but now dead, sent me to Davenport, Rock Island, and Moline "to write them up," as we say in newspaper parlance. I had never been out of the tall grass before and the Tri-Cities to me were bigger than New York, Brooklyn and The Bronx combined. In fact they were so big that I hadn't come to in a week. After wandering helplessly about the streets for that time and still in a haze, I repaired to my room in the modest hotel where I dined, and wrote a touching essay, which I mailed to Mr. Faulkes. The next day I received a hurry-up message to return by first train to Cedar Rapids. The subject of my essay was "Home and Mother."

Mind Meanderings.

It is always May to the man who has hope in his heart.

An idle man's day never fails to have 24 long hours in it.

Will those men's corsets help a poker player to "stay" longer?

Man wants but little here below, but that "little" is a "little more."

The beggar on the street may once have had ambitions greater than yours.

A man that never forgets his latchkey is altogether too methodical to enjoy life.

After all a man that knows too much is little more in demand than the one that knows not enough.

A man can make a dozen opportunities for success while he is waiting for one to make itself for him!

The man about to be operated on for an enlarged liver sent for a minister. He wanted to be opened with prayer.

The man finds a blind pig with his eyes shut can seldom find the keyhole of his residence with an electric light.

No man knows how sweet sugar is until he has tasted aloe. True happiness comes not without its attendant sorrow.

The convolutions of a man's brain resemble the meat of an English walnut—and that's why we say a man's "nutty." (Patent applied for.)

Some men will be chary about going to heaven until they learn how the fishing is there!

There are many flowers yet to bloom, many sunsets yet to admire, many red lips yet to kiss—but it is hard to convince a man with a de-ranged liver!

The Modern Master.

What is that spark in human brain
Which makes one master of his kind?
Why must men toil with aching flesh
For one who has the subtler mind?

If men are born as equals here
And each is buoyed on freedom's waves
Then tell me, ye philosopher,
Why suffer you great herd of slaves?

The master snaps his stinging lash—
The lash of dire distress and need—
Why must the staggering toiler slave
To heap up harvest for his greed?

In burning sun and stifling heat
Why toil you slaves to make him gold?
He gives them scant of food and clothes
And turns the profits to his fold!

While hope burns low and lights go out,
He follows fancy where it leads—
Money such a precious thing
He must not balm the heart that bleeds?

What is that spark in human brain
That turns the heart to flinty stone?
That makes the master man a leech
To suck the blood and leave the bone?

Oh, tell me, ye philosopher,

Shall God's own freedmen e'er be free?
Or shall the many for the few
Slave ever, 'till eternity?

An "Obstrich" Farm.

A fool with money and a promoter with experience once agreed to start an ostrich farm.

"Vot id is, dis 'obstrich' farm?" asked the fool. "Is it yet a brewery or a steel trust?—Yes?"

"No, no!" explained the promoter, "the ostrich is a bird with long legs and neck, and a balloon-shaped body with a feathery tail!"

"That is a 'obstrich,' is it, yet?" interrogated the fool with bulging eyes as he drew a mental picture.

"Yes, that is an ostrich!"

"Vere you get dis 'obstrich'? From der seed?"

"No, not from the seed; from the egg!"

"Vere you get der egg?"

"From the ostrich, of course!"

"Yah, vere you get der 'obstrich'?"

"From the egg."

"Yah, but vere you get der egg, al-ready?"

"I just told you, from the ostrich!"

"Egg, 'obstrich,' 'obstrich' egg—vere you get—say! who started dis game anyhow!"

LITTLE VISITS WITH UNCLE BY

At the Lake.

In a hammock, vis-a-vis,
Sue and I are gently swinging.
Ah, a pretty sight is she
In a dainty dress that's clinging.

Eyes as pure as nectared dew,
Lips so like a ripened cherry,
Cheeks of satin, dimples, too,
And a heart that's always merry.

Let me hold her hand a bit,
Rests her head upon my shoulder—
But she gets a pouty fit
When to kiss her I grow bolder.

Even in vacation fun
With romantic moon above her,
Kisses are reserved for one
Who shall be her life-long lover.

I can smooth her tresses brown,
I can win her smiles and glances,
But, alas! a man in town
Owns my Susan—so she fancies.

"He has loved me good and true,
Now for over eighteen seasons;
Go ask father for his Sue
And be forthwith with reasons!

"Only that way leads to bliss—
I must own it is a bother—
Then come back and get the kiss
If you win 'yes' from my father!"

Then I press her to my heart—
But before I leave for "popper"
Well, I borrow just one kiss
To return when it is proper!

Little Willie.

The boy, like Darius Green's flying machine, is fearfully and wonderfully made. It makes no difference whose boy he is, whether he is your boy, our boy, the baker's boy, the "scrub-lady's" boy or the president's boy. He is a prize package of idiosyncrasies that make him want to run away and hunt Indians every time he sees a gun advertised in the Youth's Companion, or be a pirate with every fresh breeze that blows his way. Scientists have startled the world, wise men have unraveled great secrets, inventors have constructed mechanisms almost human—but the boy, the average American boy, stands pre-eminently alone, defying science, scoffing in the face of wisdom and destroying theories with a certainty and effectiveness that suggests death and taxes.

His fond mother may have prayed fervently with him nightly, kneeling down beside his snowy cot with her loving, mother arms about him, inculcating honesty, manliness and godliness in him as only a mother can—and yet the boy may bring down upon her head the Biblical abomination and baffle her eyes and heart in burning tears of shame. He may not be a bad boy and he may have said his prayers devoutly but, despite this, he is still a boy, and it is a toss up as to whether he can wait for maturity to bring him knowledge or whether he will deteriorate into an amateur brigand at an incipient age, a burglar at 14 or a cow-puncher at 16. It is about this time he runs away with three cookies and a Colt's revolver in his breeches pocket, resolved on escapades. Usually he comes home when the cookies have been eaten—a wiser and a better boy. Tige, the same old dog, looks good to him after a night away from his own bed, and all the world is joyous once more!

Happy the mother who keeps a goodly supply of sweet-cakes on hand and whose boy never gets beyond the cookie-outlaw stage!

But he does sometimes and then mother's heart bleeds for him. She harasses herself with all sorts of painful imaginings. She wonders if she has been prudent in allowing him to choose his own companions, if she has been at the club too much, if she has permitted him to read literature that has fired his imagination, peppered his dreams and opiated his intellect, thus inciting him to deeds that lead to misery and disgrace! She realizes then what a serious thing it is to have children and be responsible for their character.

Poor mother! She is oftentimes worried and burdened and physically unable to withstand the troubles that beat and roar upon the short shore line of her life. May the love for her she has sown in the boy heart, be strong enough to bring him back remorseful to the path of rectitude and uprightness! May he have the strength and the manhood to build anew over the ruins of boyish error the stable career of an honest purpose and a noble resolve!

When Willie was a little lad
He wanted to be great—
The king of all the pirates bold
All togged in tinsel state!

But when he grew to be a man,
A different life he led.
He then became, despite the law,
A trust magnate instead!

A Persistent Suicide.

A well-known character during Uncle By's early reportorial days was Spooner, a reporter whose work was at times brilliant, but who was a deplorable hypochondriac. Spooner could have more blues than a two week's washing—and then everybody suffered. Regularly, about once a week, Spooner would creep stealthily into the office and clandestinely pass along the word that he was going to commit suicide. This grew wearisome at last and one night when the sorrowful news had been imparted for the forty-seventh time that Spooner was going down to the river and jump in, the telegraph editor arose in his wrath and exclaimed:

"Say, Spooner, you just wait a minute until I finish writing this bob-tail tail and I will go along with you and find a good deep place!"

GOVERNOR SENDS ANNUAL MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

Tishomingo, Sept. 6.—Gov. D. H. Johnston has transmitted his usual message to the Chickasaw legislature now in session here. Briefly the document explains the absurdity of another tribal election; asks that memorials providing for the sale of the segregated coal lands be passed; that the removal of restrictions be demanded; reports progress of signing and delivery of patents; reports splendid condition of Chickasaw affairs. The document concludes with these words:

"This is the seventh annual message which I have transmitted to the legislature as governor of the Chickasaw nation, and I deem it not at all improper to call attention to the fact that the period of time covered by my several administrations, as regards the bearing upon the welfare of our nation and people, has never been, and will never be, equaled by another like period of time in their history. A brief retrospect, from the beginning of my first administration, in 1888, to the present, is of continuous and absorbing interest, notwithstanding the conflicting sentiments of regret for the past felt by some, and of hope and confidence for the future felt by others. Whatever may be our regrets for the past and hopeful anticipations for the future, the Chickasaws are in the midst of a condition which is a reality, and that condition is that the customs and traditions of our fathers are no longer our rule and guide, in so far as the protection of our rights and property is concerned, but we must now contend, side by side, as citizens of the United States and of the new state of Oklahoma with more than a million other like citizens."

The policy of the government of the United States, inaugurated in 1888, by the ratification of the Atoka agreement by congress, some three months before my inauguration as governor, marks the beginning; and this policy has been pursued step by step and year by year to its practical consummation at this time.

"Fortunately our people have fully realized, for the past eight years, that gradual changing of conditions and the inevitable tendency toward those of the present; and I am happy to say as of the present; and I am happy to say as

New railroads are not unmixed blessings. The construction work brings considerable trade to nearby points, but this trade is fraught with the danger of bad debts.

For example the $20,000 worth of mules and other equipment belonging to Contractor Tim Hurley, erstwhile grading on the Oklahoma Central near Ada, is now languishing in the hands of a receiver at the instance of several Ada creditors whose claims aggregate $7,000.

The principal creditor is C. M. Chauncey, grain dealer, $4,000, the other larger ones are Reed & Harrison, $1,600; Joe Deckert, $600, and Albert Nettles, $300. Davis Bros. and The Canadian Valley Construction company

are also made garnishees and parties defendant in the suits.

Hurley broke camp and rolled out westward on August 31. Geo. Harrison, A. R. Sugg and G. P. Carney, who had been appointed receiver of the property pending the litigation, followed and overtook the caravan this week near Byars. Mr. Carney took possession and placed the property in a pasture near by. Thus they will remain until October term of U. S. court unless a settlement is sooner arranged.

All the property mentioned is said to be mortgaged for $29,000 to one Hale in Oklahoma City, but the Ada creditors allege the incumbrance to be fraudulent.

MAY BEGIN BUILDING THE CEMENT PLANT IN 2 WEEKS

A. J. Mossman, who has in charge the surveying and investigation of the comparative merits of different tracts of land as a site for the cement plant, was approached Friday by the News Letterer about the progress of the work.

"City Surveyor Truitt and myself," said Mr. Mossman, "will complete a survey of the tract in Dagg's addition within five days. After that we have instructions to move back to Sunrise addition and survey that. Within ten days both surveys will be finished, and by that time A. L. Beck, president of the cement company, is expected here to make a choice of sites. It is probable that in about two weeks work will

Texarkana, Tex., Sept. 7.—The second and day's session of the National Farmer's Educational and co-operative Union was devoted almost entirely to routine business, including the reports of officers and committees and the discussion of the same.

What is regarded as one of the most important reports was that submitted by the committee on education. This report recommends that there be an increase in industrial and agricultural instruction in the public schools, and also suggests a course of reading on economic and governmental affairs for all the members of the organization. The report elicited much applause during its reading and was unanimously adopted.

During the day a resolution was adopted recommending that the conference held at Washington last May between the cotton producers and cotton manufacturers be repeated annually in future and made a permanent feature.

Eugene Williams of Dallas, Tex., presented the convention with a round bale of cotton weighing 425 pounds with the request that it be sold and the proceeds applied to the fund for a monument to Newton Gresham, founder of the order. The gift was accepted and the cotton will be sold at noon tomorrow at auction in front of the city hall.

The committee on cotton seed and cotton seed products made its report at last night's session. The committee consists of E. S. Peters of Texas, chairman; Upton of Tennessee, Mahaffy of South Carolina, Murry of Arkansas and Ambrose of Louisiana.

The committee report was adopted as follows:

We, your committeemen on cotton and cotton seed products, beg leave to submit the following report: that whereas, at present market prices the approximate selling price of cotton seed products from one ton of cotton seed aggregates about $26.80, as follows: meal 800 pounds at $27 per ton, $10.80; oil, forty gallons at 27 1-2 cents per gallon, $11; linters, fifty pounds, at 4 1-2 cents per pound, $2.25; hulls, 750 pounds, at $6 per ton, $2.25. Total $26.80. And knowing that the total cost of producing said products from the raw seed will not exceed $5 per ton, we feel that present prices paid the producer for seed are far below what they should be in view of the value of this product.

Therefore we recommend to the members of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union that no seed be sold for less than the following rates: in the territory east of the Mississippi River a minimum price of 30c per bushel, or $18.60 per ton, as seed is worth that amount to the grower for fertilizer. In the territory west of the Mississippi River a minimum price of $15 per ton, as it is worth that price for fertilizer or feed purposes.

We earnestly urge all farmers of the South to join us in our effort to secure a fair minimum price for one of our principal products. As a matter of public policy we make the further recommendation that the attention of those public officers whose duty it is to see that the anti-trust laws are enforced be called to violations thereof, and that they be urged on securing convictions not to release offenders by mere payment of fines, but that the provisions of those laws providing for imprisonment penalty be rigidly enforced. Signed by E. S. Peters, chairman.

Democracy of the Eighty-seventh constitutional district is getting active. Friday the following call was issued, addressed to each township committeeman in the district:

Dear Sir—In order to complete the organization of the Democratic party in each constitutional delegate district, we are authorized by the State Campaign committee to call a meeting of the township committeemen within this, the Eighty-seventh constitutional district, to be held in the City of Ada, I. T., in the Reed-Douglas building, at 2 p. m., on Saturday, the 15th day of September, 1906.

We wish to impress upon you the importance of this meeting and the necessity of a full attendance on the part of the committeemen, and earnestly request that you be present. Propositions pertaining to a more complete and thorough organization of the party within this district, the ordering of a primary election to be held for the purpose of nominating a candidate for delegate to the constitutional convention, and the fixing of a date and providing for the holding of said election will then be discussed.

We also request that you secure a list of four other good, active Democrats in your township and have their names with you at the above called meeting, as this will be necessary to perfect the organization as outlined to us from headquarters. Trusting you will be present on the date above named, we are, very respectfully,

J. T. CONN,
Chairman Democratic Executive Committee Sixteenth Recording District.
A. F. PYEATT,
Chairman Democratic Executive Committee Seventeenth Recording District.

S. C. TREADWELL,
Chairman Democratic Executive Committee Twenty-second Recording District.

It will be noted that the call is signed by J. T. Conn, the local executive committee chairman, but also by the chairmen of the Tishomingo and Pauls Valley recording districts, part of whose territory is included in our constitutional district. This is in accordance with instructions from Democratic headquarters.

Secretary Dean, of the executive committee, says a new committeeman has either been elected or appointed for each of our seventeen townships, save the two southernmost, who will be named by the Tishomingo chairman at once, and township 1 south, 5 east, and township 1 north, 6 east. Upon these seventeen will largely devolve the management of the delegate campaign. Those already selected are:

R. W. Henry, Pontotoc.
A. J. Hardin, Franks.

Indian Territory Ginnery Organize.

Milburn, I. T., Sept. 7.—A number of ginnerys, representing Durant, Wapanucka, Coalgate, Tishomingo and Milburn, met at this place and took steps to organize a state ginnery association. Horace Marshall, of Durant, was elected temporary chairman, and E. D. Gill, of Milburn, temporary secretary. A banquet was given the visiting ginnerys by the business men of the town.

Permanent organization will be perfected at Coalgate on September 18.

Will Have Primary.

Ardmore, I. T., Sept. 7.—The Democratic central committee of this district, at a meeting, decided to call a primary for the election of a nominee for the constitutional convention. Two candidates, W. A. Ledbetter and Byron Drew, a former member of the Texas legislature, will run on the Democratic ticket. So far the Republicans have no candidate in the field.

OVERDRAFTS

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small, are not approved by the comptroller of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusinesslike habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving products, such as cotton, grain and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn is the man who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

AMERICAN ARTISTS ABROAD

There Merit Recognized and Edwarded Elsewhere Than It Is at Home.

Once more an American artist's picture holds the place of honor at the exhibition of the Royal Academy in London. Sargent had attained that honor; now it is Abbey's turn, with a picture distinctly American in subject, representing Columbus landing in the new world. Several other well-known American artists figure among the notable exhibitors. In the two annual pictures shown now open in Paris, the same fact is true, reports the New York World.

American artists frequently complain, as do singers and musicians, that the surest way to distinction at home is recognition abroad. The protest implies that merit is not so readily accepted here as merit is in France and England.

The distinction attained by Sargent in London has done more than all his early successors in this country to assure him preeminence. The same may be said to be true of Abbey, although fame came to him easy as an illustrator. Something may be due to the circumstance that for years both have done most of their work abroad. Beyond a doubt, however, art is viewed far more hospitably in Paris and London than in New York. We have yet no art exhibitions that occupy so large a place in popular life as the regular shows of the two foreign capitals.

It is noteworthy also that more contemporary American artists have room in the Luxembourg museum, where living painters must await admission to the Louvre, than in our own Metropolitan. The Paris list counts about 25, among them Whistler, Sargent, Winslow Homer, La Farge, Alexander Harrison, Henry Mosler, Walter MacEwan, Gari Melchers, Miss Cassatt, Edwin L. Weeks and H. O. Tanner.

Under the old management American artists were treated with suspicion at the Metropolitan. It was sometimes difficult to get their works through the museum's doors even as gifts. Fortunately, all that is being rapidly changed. Sir Purdon Clarke advocates the necessity of building up a representative American collection. Mr. George A. Hearn has donated a large fund, of which the income is reserved for the purchase of American works. It is a curious commentary on American taste that it was not until a foreign director was put in charge of the Metropolitan that American artists were promised something of the same public recognition they receive from the French government.

Blackwood died in the prison hospital after serving 18 years behind the prison bars. He had been here since the transfer from Jeffersonville in 1897.

At Blackwood was dying there stood beside his cot James L. Myers, the murderer who was given a pardon by Gov. Hanly. Myers was found praying for the dying convict when the glad tidings of the pardon came to his ears.

Blackwood served 18 years for a murderer in Clay county in 1887. All that remains of his family is a son residing in Texas. The son was notified after death, but made no reply.

The crime for which James Blackwood was sentenced occurred while a party was returning from a dance in Benwood, Clay county, to Cardonia. Blackwood quarreled with his wife. In the fight which followed the woman was knocked down and sustained four broken ribs. She was wrapped in a bundle of straw and left by the roadside, where she was found in the morning. She died soon after. Blackwood pleaded guilty and was sentenced by the late Judge Coffey of Brazil.

TURKEY WITH WOODEN LEG
Tale of a Gobbler That Smacks Somewhat of the Munchausen Flavor.

In most communities there are certain persons who possess peculiar characteristics, habits and beliefs, and this is true of the long shore sportsman of the old Mother State as of persons dwelling elsewhere, says Forest and Stream.

Many of the old time sportsmen still carry and use their muzzle loading guns, which cannot be displaced by more modern arms. They usually manage to bag a good many birds and other game, and this is chiefly due, it is believed, to their knowledge of the habits of the game. They seldom go out without finding something.

A story is told of one gunner who f any of the shot should fall from his hands while loading his gun will at once return home and make no further effort to hunt that day, believing as he says, that those lost were his luck shot, and it would be useless for him to continue the hunt.

Another, whom I will call here Capt. Pete, is a sailor and all round sportsman. He loves to tell of his adventures with his dogs and gun, and is seldom seen without them. He tells many stories about the accuracy of Sweet Lips, his gun, and declares he can beat any man "a-shootin' for a turkey in the United States of Virginia."

On the occasion of a turkey hunt near the Rappahannock river Capt. Pete claims to have shot a 40-pound wild turkey, for which he was offered $4 cash. The gray whiskers on the turkey's breast were 18 inches long, and he had one wooden leg. Here Capt. Pete gives a laugh that could be heard a half mile away. "See, he was the biggest turkey I ever saw. There were 18 fellows in the bunch of us, and four others besides, and all ate a sumptuous meal from one-half of his breast."

Uncle Pete says he cannot account for that one wooden leg unless that turkey had been previously owned by some one as a pet wild turkey.

Natural Arm Chair.
A gardener in Korea has formed a natural arm-chair by twisting a growing vine to the required shape. It is also studded with seeds of the ginkgo tree, which have grown into the fiber of the vine. After the chair was fashioned in this way it was cut from the ground, dried and polished until it resembled mahogany. It is 3 feet 4 inches high, 25 inches wide and weighs over 200 pounds.

ODD POINT IN AUTO CASE

Relatives of Victim Held Motorist Who Raised Dust Partly to Blame for Accident.

Paris.—A curious point in an action against a motor car driver came before the judges of the French chamber. It was a question as to whether a chauffeur who had raised dust could be prosecuted against for homicide for carelessness.

On May 1 last an automobile passed a cyclist on the road between Melun and Paris. The car raised a cloud of dust, with the result that the cyclist could not see his way. His machine swerved, and he was overtaken by another motor car, which knocked him down and killed him.

Could the driver of the first car, which had raised a cloud of dust, be held responsible for the accident caused by the second car? The case came before the Corbeil court, which imposed a fine of $200 on the driver of the second car, besides compelling him to pay $600 compensation. But the driver of the car which caused the dust to fly was acquitted, and his claim for $40 for being unjustifiably prosecuted was allowed against the family of the cyclist who was killed. This decision was appealed against.

BODY GIVEN TO COLLEGE.
Aged Convict's Request Carried Out by Prison Authorities at Michigan City, Ind.

Michigan City, Ind.—The body of the dead life convict, James Blackwood, who was the oldest inmate of the state prison, was taken to the Valparaiso college for dissection by the medical department.

Blackwood died in the prison hospital after serving 18 years behind the prison bars. He had been here since the transfer from Jeffersonville in 1897.

At Blackwood was dying there stood beside his cot James L. Myers, the murderer who was given a pardon by Gov. Hanly. Myers was found praying for the dying convict when the glad tidings of the pardon came to his ears.

PRECOCIOUS SENILITY.

Valuable Lives Snuffed Out in Youth

Precoious senility, when marked and
rapid, is so rare as to be mere academic
interest, a pathologic curiosity, such as the recorded instance of children of six years dying with arteriosclerosis and other signs of extreme
age, says American Medicine. Even the
very uncommon, but a much larger number of milder cases have so long been noted as to have given rise to the axiom that a man is as old as his arteries. These cases deserve more thought than is given to them, not so much to discover cures as to prevent decay, and save to society so many valuable lives which are now snuffed out in the middle age by diseases of the senile. There has been much wild speculation on the subject, chiefly in lay journals, and due, no doubt, to some more or less sensational investigations of Metchnikoff on the causes of normal senility and the possibility of prolonging human life beyond the century mark. Yet it is a serious problem and we should know what in the stimulus which makes one organism go through all its life changes in 50 years, while another under apparently identical conditions lasts 80 years longer.

COLD IS A MINOR FACTOR
In Pneumonia the Budding Together of People Is More Important

Augustus Wadsworth declares that experience has shown cold to be a minor predisposing factor in the development of pneumonia. The budding together of people in close quarters is of far more importance, says
Medical Record.

The treatment of pneumonia in its present stage may be said to be either very easy or impossible. A careful prophylaxis against disturbances of the digestive tract is of the greatest importance. Many ways of attaining the same results present themselves and the choice in great measure rests with personal experience. The hope of definite results lies in the production of an efficient and specific antiseptic.

It is known that poisonous substances are elaborated by the pneumococcus, but so far the production of an antitoxin corresponding to that used in diphtheria has not been obtained. Pneumonia, however, is the severe disease and as yet in none of this type have satisfactory results
been secured in relation to antitoxin.

The hope of success nevertheless is gradually growing brighter.

American Purchaser of Silver in London Is Served with Accuracy.

A New Yorker was once referring to the stolidity and literal-mindedness of the British shopkeeper, when he was reminded of an amusing experience of a friend in London, relates Success Magazine.

The American had been making several purchases in a jewelry establishment, among others a silver set and noticing that he had with him insufficient funds to defray the entire cost, he desired the clerk to send the set to his hotel, marked "C. O. D."

Due note was made by the clerk but when the articles arrived at the hotel
the purchaser was surprised to find that no charge had been collected. Opening the package the American was dumfounded to discover that each piece of silver had been carefully engraved, in a beautiful monogram, "C. O. D."

To Save Table Cloths.

A friend with a large family used to be much disturbed over the frequency with which she had to renew her table linen, and especially the tablecloths. At last she hit this plan:

When she buys her linen, she sees to it that it is wider than necessary, and also a few inches longer. Then when the edges show the slightest indication of wear, she immediately takes off a strip from one side, four or six inches wide, and a strip from the end. This of course throws the wear upon a different place, and her cloth lasts just as long again. Isn't it well worth trying?

Submerged Roman Cities.

Late explorations of the Italian coast near Pompeii have changed the opinion of antiquarians, says the New York Tribune. The submerged Roman ruins along the coast used to be regarded as foundation walls thrown out for sea baths, but it was made clear that they are the remains of noble mansions, and that they point to the time when the land on which they stood was far above the level of the sea. The shore is, in fact, strewn with the wrecks of buried cities. Coast roads have vanished, ancient quarries have been flooded and the breakwaters
of the harbors of classical story covered fathoms deep with water. A great submarine sea wall, with concrete piers 17 feet high, still protects the fragments. But neither the fragments nor the great sea wall have been visible in the light of day for 2,000 years.

A Ballade.
"Tom" was an old maiden's cat—
Gentleman Thomas was he,
Never went out on a "bat"
Under the crab-apple tree!
Heart while a cat as could be;
Then came a fair maidens queen
Sweet as a kitten was she—
Sweet thing Thomas had seen!

Tom lost his heart in a trice,
Teased of his love by the moon'
Foraged and brought her some juice.
Saw her a pretty love tune
All in his very best tune!
Begged her to reign in his shed!
Shouldn't she come to him soon,
Come to him soon and be wed?

As' what a wedding it was—
Under the crab-apple tree!
Cats come for miles, all a-buzz,
Anxious the nuptials to see.
Promised with this mat-ri-mo-ny
Ah! but the crowd was a sight—
Under the crab-apple tree—
Yowl! what a noise in the night!

Then came a man with a gun—
"Boom!" went the gun—just like that!
Now my and story is done—
"Tom" is a widower cat!

Now he wears creeps on his hat;
Nigger he mourns for his girl
Under the tree—and stands mutely
Dreading the miseries they hurl!

After a severe bombardment by mail, Fred Faulkes, then of the Cedar Rapids (Ia.) I had never been out of the tall grass before and the Tri-Cities to me were bigger than New York, Brooklyn and The Bronx combined. In fact they were so big that I hadn't come to in a week. After wandering helplessly about the streets for that time and still in a haze, I repaired to my room in the modest hotel where I dined, and wrote a touching essay, which I mailed to Mr. Faulkes. The next day I received a burry-up message to return by first train to Cedar Rapids. The subject of my essay was "Home and Mother."

What is that spark in human brain
Which makes one master of his kind?
Why must men toll with aching flesh
For one who has the subtler mind?

If men are born as equals here
And each is buoyed on freedom's waves,
Then tell me, ye philosopher,
Why suffer you great herd of slaves?

The master snaps his stinging lash—
The lash of dire distress and need—
Why must the staggering toller slave
To heap up harvest for his greed?

In burning sun and stifling heat
Why toll you slaves to make him gold?
He gives them scant of food and clothes
And turns the profits to his fold!

While hope burns low and lights go out,
Those toller fancy where it leads—
Is money such a precious thing?
He must not balm the heart that bleeds!

"Yes, that is an ostrich!"

At the Lake.

In a hammock, vis-a-vis,
Sue and I are gently swinging.
Ah, a pretty sight is she
In a dainty dress that's clinging.

Eyes as pure as nectarred dew,
Lips so like a ripened cherry,
Cheeks of satin, dimples, too,
And a heart that's always merry.

Lets me hold her hand a bit,
Rests her head upon my shoulder—
But she gets a pouty fit
When to kiss her I grow bolder.

Even in vacation fun
With romantic moon above her,
Kisses are reserved for one
Who shall be her life-long lover.

I can smooth her tresses brown,
I can win her smile and glances,
But, alas! a man in town
Owns my Susan—so she fancies.

"He has loved me good and true,
Now for over eighteen seasons;
Go ask father for his Sue
And be fortified with reasons!"

"Only that way leads to bliss—
I must own it is a bother—
They come back and get the kiss
If you win 'ya' from my father!"

Then I press her to my heart—
But before I leave for "popper,"
Will, I borrow just one kiss
To return when it is proper!

Little Willie.

The boy, like Darling Green's flying machine, is fearfully and wonderfully made. It makes no difference whose boy he is, whether he is your boy, our boy, the baker's boy, the "scrub-lady's" boy or the president's boy. He is a prize package of idiosyncrasies that make him want to run away and hunt Indians every time he sees a gun advertised in the Youth's Companion, or be a pirate with every fresh breeze that blows his way. Scientists have started the world, wise men have unraveled great secrets, inventors have constructed mechanisms almost human—but the boy, the average American boy, stands pre-eminently alone, defying science, scoffing in the face of wisdom and destroying theories with a certainty and effectiveness that suggests death and taxes.

His fond mother may have prayed fervently with him nightly, kneeling down beside his snowy cot with her loving, mother arms about him, inculcating honesty, manliness and godliness in him as only a mother can—and yet the boy may bring down upon her head the Biblical abomination and bathe her eyes and heart in burning tears of shame.

He may not be a bad boy and he may have said his prayers devoutly but, despite this, he is still a boy, and it is a toss up as to whether he can wait for maturity to bring him knowledge or whether he will deteriorate into an amateur brigand at an incipient age, a burglar at 14 or a cow-puncher at 16. It is about this time he runs away with three cookies and a Colt's revolver in his breeches pocket, resolved on escapades. Usually he comes home when the cookies have been eaten—a wiser and a better boy. Tike, the same old dog, looks good to him after a night away from his own bed, and all the world is joyous once more!

Happy the mother who keeps a goodly supply of sweet-cakes on hand and whose boy never gets beyond the cookie-outlaw stage!

But he does sometimes and then mother's heart bleeds for him. She harasses herself with all sorts of painful imaginings. She wonders if she has been prudent in allowing him to choose his own companions, if she has been at the club too much, if she has permitted him to read literature that has fired his imagination, peppered his dreams and opiated his intellect, thus inciting him to deeds that lead to misery and disgrace! She realizes then what a serious thing it is to have children and be responsible for their character.

inasmuch as "there are no birds in last year's nests," your uncle has decided to become a candidate for the presidency on the "Christmas Present Ticket." Christmas is several months in the future and during this period "Uncle By" hopes to get his political fences built and plan a campaign that will be a humdinger. Last spring on the "Fever" ticket "Uncle By" promised to supply free ice and three nights a week down town for married men. He will do even better than this on the Christmas ticket. He will give free coal and four nights down town. All married men, and married women who seek rest and quiet, should vote the straight ticket for "Uncle By" for president. Remember, there will be a full dinner pall and four kinds of cake at each meal during his reign. Pin on your "Uncle By" button and begin to practice standing on a stump before the speech-making season opens. "Rah for the "Christmas Present Ticket" and "Uncle By!"

Persistent Suicide.

A well-known character during Uncle By's early reportorial days was Spooner, a reporter whose work was at times brilliant, but who was a deeply hypochondriac. Spooner could have more blues than two week's washing—and then everybody suffered. Regularly, about once a week, Spooner would creep stealthily into the office and clandestinely pass along the word that he was going to commit suicide. This grew wearisome at last and one night when the sorrowful news had been imparted for the forty-seventh time that Spooner was going down to the river and jump in, the telegraph editor arose in his wrath and exclaimed:

"Say, Spooner, you just wait a minute until I finish writing this bobtail headline and I will go along with you and find a good deep place!"

GOVERNOR SENDS ANNUAL MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

Tishomingo, Sept. 6.—Gov. D. H. Johnston has transmitted his usual message to the Chickasaw legislature now in session here. Briefly the document explains the absurdity of another tribal election; asks that memorials providing for the sale of the segregated coal lands be passed; that the removal of restrictions be demanded; reports progress of signing and delivery of patents; reports splendid condition of Chickasaw affairs. The document concludes with these words:

"This is the seventh annual message which I have transmitted to the legislature as governor of the Chickasaw nation, and I deem it not at all improper to call attention to the fact that the period of time covered by my several administrations, as regards the bearing upon the welfare of our nation and people, has never been, and will never be, equaled by another like period of time in their history. A brief retrospect, from the beginning of my first administration, in 1898, to the present, is of continuous and absorbing interest, notwithstanding the conflicting sentiments of regret for the past felt by some, and of hope and confidence for the future felt by others. Whatever may be our regrets for the past and hopeful anticipations for the future, the Chickasaws are in the midst of a condition which is a reality, and that condition is that the customs and traditions of our fathers are no longer our rule and guide, in so far as the protection of our rights and property is concerned, but we must now contend, side by side, as citizens of the United States and of the new state of Oklahoma with more than a million other like citizens."

The policy of the government of the United States, inaugurated in 1898, by the ratification of the Atoka agreement by congress, some three months before my inauguration as governor, marks the beginning; and this policy has been pursued step by step and year by year to its practical consummation at this time.

"Fortunately our people have fully realized, for the past eight years, that gradual changing of conditions and the inevitable tendency toward those of the present; and I am happy to say as

MUST HAVE $15 A TON FOR ALL COTTON SEED

Texarkana, Tex., Sept. 7.—The second day's session of the National Farmer's Educational and co-operative Union was devoted almost entirely to routine business, including the reports of officers and committees and the discussion of the same.

What is regarded as one of the most important reports was that submitted by the committee on education. This report recommends that there be an increase in industrial and agricultural instruction in the public schools, and also suggests a course of reading on economic and governmental affairs for all the members of the organization. The report elicited much applause during its reading and was unanimously adopted.

During the day a resolution was adopted recommending that the conference held at Washington last May between the cotton producers and cotton manufacturers be repeated annually in future and made a permanent feature.

Eugene Williams of Dallas, Tex., presented the convention with a round bale of cotton weighing 425 pounds to the request that it be sold and the proceeds applied to the fund for monument to Newton Gresham, founder of the order. The gift was accepted and the cotton will be sold at noon tomorrow at auction in front of the city hall.

The committee on cotton seed and cotton seed products made its report at last night's session. The committee consists of E. S. Peters of Texas, chairman; Upton of Tennessee, Mahaffy of South Carolina, Murry of Arkansas and Ambrose of Louisiana.

The committee report was adopted as follows:

We, your committeemen on cotton and cotton seed products, beg leave to submit the following report: that whereas, at present market prices the approximate selling price of cotton seed products from one ton to cotton seed aggregates about $26.30, as follows: meal 800 pounds at $27 per ton, $10.80; oil, forty gallons at 27 1/2 cents per gallon, $11; linters, fifty pounds, at 4 1/2¢ per pound, $2.25; hulls, 750 pounds, at $6 per ton, $2.25. Total $26.30. And knowing that the total cost of producing said products from the raw seed will not exceed $5 per ton, we feel that present prices paid the producer for seed are far below what they should be in view of the value of this product.

Therefore we recommend to the members of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union that no seed be sold for less than the following rates: in the territory east of the Mississippi River a minimum price of 30¢ per bushel, or $18.60 per ton, as seed is worth that amount to the grower for fertilizer. In the territory west of the Mississippi River a minimum price of $15 per ton, as it is worth that price for fertilizer or feed purposes.

We earnestly urge all farmers of the South to join us in our effort to secure a fair minimum price for one of our principal products. As a matter of public policy we make the further recommendation that the attention of those public officers whose duty it is to see that the anti-trust laws are enforced be called to violations thereof, and that they be urged on securing convictions not to release offenders by mere payment of fines, but that the provisions of those laws providing for imprisonment penalty be rigidly enforced.

Signed by E. S. Peters, chairman.

NEW DISTRICT COMMITTEE TO MEET SEPTEMBER 15

Democracy of the Eighty-seventh constitutional district is getting active. Friday the following call was issued, addressed to each township committeeman in the district:

Dear Sir—In order to complete the organization of the Democratic party in each constitutional delegate district, we are authorized by the State Campaign committee to call a meeting of the township committeemen who were elected or appointed under and by virtue of a recent order sent out from the State Campaign headquarters at Oklahoma City.

As you have been chosen committeeman for your township, we h—by notify you that we have called a meeting of said township committeemen within this, the Eighty-seventh constitutional district, to be held in the City of Ada, I. T., in the Reed-Douglas building, at 2 p. m., on Saturday, the 15th day of September, 1906.

We wish to impress upon you the importance of this meeting and the necessity of a full attendance on the part of the committeemen, and earnestly request that you be present. Propositions pertaining to a more complete and thorough organization of the party within this district, the ordering of a primary election to be held for the purpose of nominating a candidate for delegate to the constitutional convention, and the fixing of a date and providing for the holding of said election will then be discussed.

We also request that you secure a list of four other good, active Democrats in your township and have their names with you at the above called meeting, as this will be necessary to perfect the organization as outlined to us from headquarters. Trusting you will be present on the date above named, we are, very respectfully,

Indian Territory Ginnery Organize.

Milburn, I. T., Sept. 7.—A number of ginnery, representing Durant, Wapanucka, Coalgate, Tishomingo and Milburn, met at this place and took steps to organize a state ginnery association. Horace Marshall, of Durant, was elected temporary chairman, and E. D. Gill, of Milburn, temporary secretary. A banquet was given the visiting ginnery by the business men of the town.

Permanent organization will be perfected at Coalgate on September 18.

Will Have Primary.

Ardmore, I. T., Sept. 7.—The Democratic central committee of this district, at a meeting, decided to call a primary for the election of a nominee for the constitutional convention. Two candidates, W. A. Ledbetter and Byron Drew, a former member of the Texas legislature, will run on the Democratic ticket. So far the Republicans have no candidate in the field.

J. T. CONN,
Chairman Democratic Executive Committee Sixteenth Recording District.

A. F. PYEATT,
Chairman Democratic Executive Committee Seventeenth Recording District.

S. C. TREADWELL,
Chairman Democratic Executive Committee Twenty-second Recording District.

It will be noted that the call is signed by J. T. Conn, the local executive committee chairman, but also by the chairmen of the Tishomingo and Paul Valley recording districts, part of whose territory is included in our constitutional district. This is in accordance with instructions from Democratic headquarters.

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small, are not approved by the comptroller of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusinesslike habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving products, such as cotton, grain and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn in the bank who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

OVERDRAFTS

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small, are not approved by the comptroller of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusinesslike habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving products, such as cotton, grain and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn in the bank who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

ADA MERCHANTS GIVEN A SCARE FOR THEIR MONEY

New railroads are not unmixed blessings. The construction work brings considerable trade to nearby points, but this trade is fraught with the danger of bad debts.

For example the $20,000 worth of mules and other equipment belonging to Contractor Tim Hurley, erstwhile grading on the Oklahoma Central near Ada, is now languishing in the hands of a receiver at the instance of several Ada creditors whose claims aggregate $7,000.

The principal creditor is C. M. Chauncey, grain dealer, $4,000, the other larger ones are Reed & Harrison, $1,600; Joe Deckert, $600, and Albert Nettles, $300. Davis Bros. and The Canadian Valley Construction company

are also made garnishees and parties defendant in the suits.

Hurley broke camp and rolled out westward on August 31. Geo. Harrison, A. R. Sugg and G. P. Carney, who had been appointed receiver of the property pending the litigation, followed and overtook the caravan this week near Byars. Mr. Carney took possession and placed the property in a pasture near by. Thus they will remain until October term of U. S. court unless settlement is sooner arranged.

All the property mentioned is said to be mortgaged for $29,000 to one Hale in Oklahoma City, but the Ada creditors allege the incumbrance to be fraudulent.

MAY BEGIN BUILDING THE CEMENT PLANT IN 2 WEEKS

A. J. Mossman, who has in charge the surveying and investigation of the comparative merits of different tracts of land as a site for the cement plant, was approached Friday by the News Letter about the progress of the work.

"City Surveyor Truitt and myself," said Mr. Mossman, "will complete a survey of the tract in Dagg's addition within five days. After that we have instructions to move back to Sunrise addition and survey that. Within ten days both surveys will be finished, and by that time A. L. Beck, president of the cement company, is expected here to make a choice of sites. It is probable that in about two weeks work will

Their Merit Recognized and Edwarded Elsewhere Than It Is at Home.

Once more an American artist's picture holds the place of honor at the exhibition of the Royal Academy in London. Sargent had attained that honor; now it is Abbey's turn, with a picture distinctly American in subject, representing Columbus landing in the new world. Several other well-known American artists figure among the notable exhibitors. In the two annual pictures shown now open in Paris, the same fact is true, reports the New York World.

American artists frequently complain, as do singers and musicians, that the surest way to distinction at home is recognition abroad. The protest implies that merit is not so readily accepted here as merit is in France and England.

The distinction attained by Sargent in London has done more than all his early successors in this country to assure him preeminence. The same may be said to be true of Abbey, although fame came to him easy as an illustrator. Something may be due to the circumstance that for years both have done most of their work abroad. Beyond a doubt, however, art is viewed far more hospitably in Paris and London than in New York. We have yet no art exhibitions that occupy so large a place in popular life as the regular shows of the two foreign capitals.

It is noteworthy also that more contemporary American artists have room in the Luxembourg museum, where living painters must await admission to the Louvre, than in our own Metropolitan. The Paris list counts about 25, among them Whistler, Sargent, Winslow Homer, La Farge, Alexander Harrison, Henry Mosler, Walter MacEwan, Gari Melchers, Miss Cassatt, Edwin L. Weeks and H. O. Tanner.

Under the old management American artists were treated with suspicion at the Metropolitan. It was sometimes difficult to get their works through the museum's doors even as gifts. Fortunately, all that is being rapidly changed. Sir Purdon Clarke advocates the necessity of building up a representative American collection. Mr. George A. Hearn has donated a large fund, of which the income is reserved for the purchase of American works. It is a curious commentary on American taste that it was not until a foreign director was put in charge of the Metropolitan that American artists were promised something of the same public recognition they receive from the French government.

Blackwood died in the prison hospital after serving 18 years behind the prison bars. He had been here since the transfer from Jeffersonville in 1897.

As Blackwood was dying there stood beside his cot James L. Myers, the murderer who was given a pardon by Gov. Hanly. Myers was found praying for the dying convict when the glad tidings of the pardon came to his ears.

Blackwood served 18 years for a murderer in Clay county in 1887. All that remains of his family is a son residing in Texas. The son was notified after death, but made no reply.

The crime for which James Blackwood was sentenced occurred while a party was returning from a dance in Benwood, Clay county, to Cardonia. Blackwood quarreled with his wife. In the fight which followed the woman was knocked down and sustained four broken ribs. She was wrapped in a bundle of straw and left by the roadside, where she was found in the morning. She died soon after. Blackwood pleaded guilty and was sentenced by the late Judge Coffey of Brazil.

Tapioca Jelly for Invalids.

One cup of tapioca, three cups of cold water, juice of a lemon and a pinch of grated peel. Sweeten to taste. Soak the tapioca in the boiling water four hours. Set within a saucepan of boiling water; pour more lukewarm water over the tapioca if it has absorbed too much of the liquid, and heat, stirring frequently. If too thick after it begins to clear, put in a very little boiling water. When quite clear, put in sugar and lemon. Pour into molds. Eat cold, with cream flavor with rosewater and sweetened.

PRECOCIOUS SENILITY.

Valuable Lives Snuffed Out in Youth and Middle Age by Disease of Age.

Precocious senility, when marked and rapid, is so rare as to be more academic interest, a pathologic curiosity, such as the recorded instance of children of six years dying with arteriosclerosis and other signs of extreme age, says American Medicine.

Even the very uncommon, but a much larger number of milder cases have so long been noted as to have given rise to the axiom that a man is as old as his arteries. These cases deserve more thought than is given to them, not so much to discover cures as to prevent decay, and save to society so many valuable lives which are now snuffed out in the middle age by diseases of the senile.

There has been much wild speculation on the subject, chiefly in lay journals, and due, no doubt, to some more or less sensational investigations of Metchnikoff on the causes of normal senility and the possibility of prolonging human life beyond the century mark.

Yet it is a serious problem and we should know what is the stimulus which makes one organism go through all its life changes in 50 years, while another under apparently identical conditions lasts 30 years longer.

COLD IS A MINOR FACTOR

In Pneumonia the Huddling Together of People Is More Important

Augustus Wadsworth declares that experience has shown cold to be a minor predisposing factor in the development of pneumonia. The huddling together of people in close quarters is of far more importance, says Medical Record.

The treatment of pneumonia in its present stage may be said to be either very easy or impossible. A careful prophylaxis against disturbances of the digestive tract is of the greatest importance. Many ways of attaining the same results present themselves and the choice in great measure rests with personal experience. The hope of definite results lies in the production of an efficient and specific antiseptic.

It is known that poisonous substances are elaborated by the pneumococcus, but so far as the production of an antitoxin corresponding to that used in diphtheria has not been obtained. Pneumonia, however, is the character of disease and as yet in none of this type have satisfactory results been secured in relation to antisera.

The hope of success nevertheless is gradually growing brighter.

American Purchaser of Silver in London Is Served with Accuracy.

A New Yorker was once referring to the stolidity and literal-mindedness of the British shopkeeper, when he was reminded of an amusing experience of a friend in London, relates Success Magazine.

The American had been making several purchases in a jewelry establishment, among others a silver set and noting that he had with him insufficient funds to defray the entire cost, he desired the clerk to send the set to his hotel, marked "C. O. D."

Due note was made by the clerk but when the articles arrived at the hotel the purchaser was surprised to find that no charge had been collected.

Opening the package the American was dumfounded to discover that each piece of silver had been carefully engraved, a

MIGRATION OF WILD GEESE

New the Old Leader of a Flock Gathers It and Starts on Its Journey.

At the end of March or during the first week in April all the gray geese in the Outer Hebrides collect in one place before taking their departure for their nesting haunts within the Arctic circle.

To estimate their numbers is impossible, and to behold this vast conourse of geese as one of the sights of a lifetime. The vast host of birds stands packed together in a huge phalanx till the king of the geese starts the flight. As the old leader ascends a hundred thousand voices salute him, but none stir till from overhead he gives the call for his subjects to follow him.

Some fifty birds rise in the air and follow him, and as they go gradually assume the wedge-like formation, with three single birds in a string at the apex of the triangle, and in a few minutes are out of sight. When they have been fairly started the king returns, and after a few minutes rest he rises into the air again, and the same process is gone through before he leads off another batch.

Again and again he returns until all are gone but 300 old veterans, which rise to meet him in the air as he flies back to them. Then, with their sovereign at their head, these also wing their way toward the pole not to return until the following October.

MEASURING DEPTH OF AIR

Atmospheric Envelope of Earth Determined by Interesting Scientific Observation.

One hundred and 31 miles is the height of the atmosphere as measured by Prof. T. J. J. See, who determines the thickness of the air envelope by noting the difference between the time of sunset and the complete disappearance of blue from the sky. The moment at which the blue changes into black can be observed quite easily with approximate certainty by the naked eye when the air is clear; and by trigonometry may be ascertained the distance below the horizon of the sun at the moment of change. By this means may be calculated the height of the smallest illuminated particles of oxygen and nitrogen which give to the sky its blueness of tint by the reflection of the smallest wave lengths of the sun's light. The instant of change from blue to black is possibly a difficult of exact observation, but the method is not more doubtful than that based in the observation of shooting stars. The shooting star method gives a result not greatly differing from the vanishing blue method. The former gives the height of the atmosphere at 109 miles.

To Save Table Cloths.

A friend with a large family used to be much disturbed over the frequency with which she had to renew her table linen, and especially the tablecloths. At last she hit this plan.

When she buys her linen, she sees to it that it is wider than necessary, and also a few inches longer. Then when the edges show the slightest indication of wear, she immediately takes off a strip from one side, four or six inches wide, and a strip from the end. This of course throws the wear upon a different place, and her cloth lasts just as long again. Isn't it well worth trying?

WHERE LAWYER CAME IN.

Worked Up a Shock for the Passenger and Got Damages for It.

Uncle Billy Smith had got back home after a trip to see his sister, and sitting on the post office steps, relates the Baltimore American, he said to the men who were asking questions:

"Well, in the car with me was a lawyer. I'd been talkin' with him and feelin' sorry that he hadn't taken to some honest profession, when the cars run on the track. Nobody was hurt, but our trunks in the baggage car was all smashed up. Party soon a man comes around, and ask us to make out the damages. I wrote down that I had lost two shirts, three pairs of socks, an old suit of clothes and a pair of shoes, and that my damages was ten dollars. The lawyer looks at the paper and said:

"But you ain't added anything for the shock."

"What shock?"

"The shock to your feelin'. Put down $200 for that."

"But have my feelin' been shocked?"

"Of course they have, and you must get pay for it."

"I put her down as he said, and two days later I got my damages in hard cash. I've all along thought a lawyer was next door to a pirate, and that he'd do most any mean thing, but I've had to change my mind. That feller just worked up a shock for me and got me $200 extra, and if my son Sam wants to go into the law business I shan't do any great objectin'."

August days are so long and hot.

Some women take all but 30 cents of their husband's wages and then accuse him of being extravagant

JUST TIRED.
I am tired of raking for money.
I am tired of raking for paws.
I am tired of raking for grafters—
I would like to go out and rake hay!

A funny man says you cannot learn how to kiss in a correspondence school. One doesn't have to learn how to kiss. It comes as natural as hugging a basque pattern in a hammock

There are some 20,000,000 words in the Congressional Record. In other words, just half as many as in the curtain lecture your wife gave you the last time you stayed out all night with the boys

The traveling evangelist comes to town and holds overflow meetings until the cows come home, and four-fifths of his audience is composed of women and children. Many go forward and are saved while the men are playing pinochle or seven-up downtown. Now, what bothers me is this: if only the women are saved who, in Heaven, will "lovey" call "dovey," who will bring home the pay envelope Saturday night, who will split the wood and growl at the heavy dumpings in the chicken pot-pie? In other words, who will make home happy in Heaven?

Mystery of the Universe.
"I doan believe it!" snorted Ebenezer Lincoln Washington Higfoot. "I doan believe it!"

Uncle By's Start.
Once upon a time I was a yearning youth who wanted to get out of the village environs and try my sails on the great sea of journalism. After a severe bombardment by mail, Fred Faustus, then of the Cedar Rapids (Ia.) Gazette, but now dead, sent me to Davenport, Rock Island, and Moline "to write them up," as we say in newspaper parlance. I had never been out of the tall grass before and the Tri-Cities to me were bigger than New York, Brooklyn and The Bronx combined. In fact they were so big that I hadn't come to in a week. After wandering helplessly about the streets for that time and still in a haze, I repaired to my room in the modest hotel where I dined, and wrote a touching essay, which I mailed to Mr. Faustus. The next day I received a hurry-up message to return by first train to Cedar Rapids. The subject of my essay was "Home and Mother."

There are many flowers yet to bloom, many sunsets yet to admire, many red lips yet to kiss—but it is hard to convince a man with a deranged liver!

The Modern Master.
What is that spark in human brain
Which makes one master of his kind?
Why must men toil with aching flesh
For one who has the subtler mind?

If men are born as equals here
And each is buoyed on freedom's waves,
Then tell me, ye philosopher,
Why suffer you great herd of slaves?

The master snaps his stinging lash—
The lash of dire distress and need—
Why must the staggering toller slave
To heap up harvest for his greed?

In burning sun and stifling heat
Why toll you slaves to make him gold?
It gives them scant of food and clothes
And turns the profits to his fold!

While hope burns low and lights go out,
He follows fancy where it leads—
Is money such a precious thing?
He must not balm the heart that bleeds?

What is that spark in human brain
That turns the master man a leech
To suck the blood and leave the bone?

Oh, tell me, ye philosopher,
Shall God's own freedom's ear be free?
Or shall the many for the few
Blaze ever, 'till eternity?

An "Ostrich" Farm.
A fool with money and a promoter with experience once agreed to start an ostrich farm.

"Vot id is, dis 'ostrich' farm?" asked the fool. "Is it yet a brewery or a steel trust—Yes?"

"No, no!" explained the promoter. "The ostrich is a bird with long legs and neck, and a balloon-shaped body with a feather tail!"

"That is a 'ostrich,' is it, yet?" interrogated the fool with bulging eyes as he drew a mental picture.

"Yes, that is an ostrich!"

"Vere you get dis 'ostrich'? From der seet?"

"No, not from the seed; from the egg!"

"Vere you get der egg?"

"From the ostrich, of course!"

"Yah, vere you get der 'ostrich'?"

"From the egg."

"Yah, but vere you get der egg, al-ready?"

"I just told you, from the ostrich!"

"Egg, 'ostrich,' 'ostrich' egg—vere you get—say! who started dis game anyhow!"

LITTLE VISITS WITH "UNCLE BY"

Mind Meanderings.

It is always May to the man who has hope in his heart.

An idle man's day never fails to have 24 long hours in it.

Will those men's corsets help a poker player to "stay" longer?

Man wants but little here below, but that "little" is a "little more."

The beggar on the street may once have had ambitions greater than yours.

A man that never forgets his latchkey is altogether too methodical to enjoy life.

After all a man that knows too much is little more in demand than the one that knows not enough.

A man can make a dozen opportunities for success while he is waiting for one to make itself for him!

The man about to be operated on for an enlarged liver sent for a minister. He wanted to be opened with prayer.

The man that finds a blind pig with his eyes shut can seldom find the keyhole of his residence with an electric light.

No man knows how sweet sugar is until he has tasted aloe. True happiness comes not without its attendant sorrow.

The convolutions of a man's brain resemble the meat of an English walnut—and that's why we say a man's "nutty." (Patent applied for)

At the Lake.

In a hammock, viva-via,
Sue am I gently swinging.
Ah, a pretty sight is she
In a dainty dress that's clinging.

Eyes as pure as nectared dew,
Lips so like a ripened cherry,
Cheeks of satin, dimples, too,
And heart that's always merry.

Let's me hold her hand a bit,
Rests her head upon my shoulder—but
She gets a pouty fit
When to kiss her I grow bolder.

Even in vacation fun

With romantic moon above her.

Kisses are reserved for one

Who shall be her life-long lover.

I can smooth her tresses brown,
I can win her smiles and glances,
But, alas! a man in town
Owns my Susan—so she dances.

"He has loved me good and true,
Now for over eighteen seasons;
Go ask father for him Sue
And be fortified with reasons!

"Only that way leads to bliss—
I must own it is a bother—
Then come back and get the kiss
If you win 'yer' from my father!"

Then I press her to my heart—
But before I leave for "popper" Well,
I borrow just one kiss
To return when it is proper!

Little Willie.

The boy, like Darius Green's flying machine, is fearfully and wonderfully made. It makes no difference whose boy he is, whether he is your boy, our boy, the baker's boy, the "scrub-lady's" boy or the president's boy. He is a prize package of idiosyncrasies that make him want to run away and hunt Indians every time he sees a gun advertised in the Youth's Companion, or be a pirate with every fresh breeze that blows his way. Scientists have startled the world, wise men have unraveled great secrets, inventors have constructed mechanisms almost human—but the boy, the average American boy, stands pre-eminently alone, defying science, scoffing in the face of wisdom and destroying theories with a certainty and effectiveness that suggests death and taxes.

His fond mother may have prayed fervently with him nightly, kneeling down beside his snowy cot with her loving, mother arms about him, inculcating honesty, manliness and godliness in him as only a mother can—and yet the boy may bring down upon her head the Biblical abomination and bathe her eyes and heart in burning tears of shame.

He may not be a bad boy and he may have said his prayers devoutly but, despite this, he is still boy, and it is a toss up as to whether he can wait for maturity to bring him knowledge or whether he will deteriorate into an amateur brigand at an incipient age, a burglar at 14 or a cow-puncher at 16. It is about this time he runs away with three cookies and a Colt's revolver in his breeches pocket, resolved on escapades. Usually he comes home when the cookies have been eaten—a wiser and a better boy. Tige, the same old dog, looks good to him after a night away from his own bed, and all the world is joyous once more!

Happy the mother who keeps a goodly supply of sweet-cakes on hand and whose boy never gets beyond the cookie-outlaw stage!

But he does sometimes and then mother's heart bleeds for him. She harasses herself with all sorts of painful imaginings. She wonders if she has been prudent in allowing him to choose his own companions, if she has been at the club too much, if she has permitted him to read literature that has fired his imagination, peppered his dreams and opiated his intellect, thus inciting him to deeds that lead to misery and disgrace! She realizes then what a serious thing it is to have children and be responsible for their character.

Poor mother! She is oftentimes worried and burdened and physically unable to withstand the troubles that beat and roar upon the short shore line of her life. May the love for her she has sown in the boy heart, be strong enough to bring him back remorseful to the path of rectitude and uprightness! May he have the strength and the manhood to build anew over the ruins of boyish error the stable career of an honest purpose and a noble resolve!

When Willie was a little lad
He wanted to be a hero.
The king of all the pirates bold
All togged in tassel state!

But when he grew to be a man,
A different life he led...

He then became, despite the law,
A trust magnate instead!

A Persistent Suicide.

A well-known character during Uncle By's early reportorial days was Spooner, a reporter whose work was at times brilliant, but who was deplorable hypochondriac. Spooner could have more blues than a two week's washing—and then everybody suffered. Regularly, about once a week, Spooner would creep stealthily into the office and clandestinely pass along the word that he was going to commit suicide. This grew wearisome at last and one night when the sorrowful news had been imparted for the forty-seventh time that Spooner was going down to the river and jump in, the telegraph editor arose in his wrath and exclaimed:

"Say, Spooner, you just wait a minute until I finish writing this bob-tail head and I will go along with you and find a good deep place!"
